STRIKE PARLEY IN MAN TO MAN FASHION URGED

Mediation Board Believes Such a Compromise Is Only Solution Means.

REPORTS TO MISS PERKINS

Secretary Still Hopeful Despite Collapse of Federal Agency.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—The federal mediation board reported to Secretary Perkins today that a "man to man" discussion around the "conference table" would be necessary to break the steel strike dead-lock.

The report was made ready for Miss Perkins after Charles P. Taft, board chairman, and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, a board member, had conferred with her.

The labor secretary said that in the report the board was reflecting its opinion that a conference between steel corporation officials and leaders of the Committee for Industrial Organization would serve as a method to break the stale-mate.

Earlier Miss Perkins had told reporters that although the government's efforts to mediate the strike had collapsed, she was still studying the situation to determine if further mediating steps are possible.

Taft, Miss Perkins said, was working on notes to put down the board's work as a matter of record. It will be the basis of a full report to the labor department.

The secretary said she presumed the report would be made public soon as other members of the board confer with her and Taft.

"The board is recommending," Miss Perkins said, "it made a recommendation which required assent of both sides. Two steel companies agreed at once that they would not accede and the other two rejected in 24 hours that they too would not accede.

There is nothing more the board can think of to recommend. It was a constructive compromise proposal."

She said she referred to the board's recommendation that a contract between workers and the company be drawn and an election held among workers to determine if the contract were acceptable.

Taft said the board's report was a brief one. He plans to read it over the telephone to the third board member, Lloyd K. Garrison, and then, he said, Miss Perkins probably will make it public.

Asked if the board suggested any other means of ending the industrial dispute besides a "man to man" discussion, Taft replied:

"I will leave you to the report." He had no comment to make when asked if the board considered asking President Roosevelt to intervene.

Cupid Running Behind Record for Last June

Cupid apparently is weakening this June according to records of probate and common pleas court which list only 32 license issued to date as compared with 53 to this date last year. In addition Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young has granted 15 divorces since Thursday, setting what is believed to be a record for any three court days.

Marriages recorded so far this June number 45 as compared with 46 to this date last year. Licenses applied for but never issued for various reasons number only two as compared with five to this date in 1936.

For the entire month of June last year there were 52 licenses issued. The June record was set in 1935 with 76.

BICYCLISTS GIVEN TERMS IN JAIL

Sixty days in jail and costs was the sentence imposed yesterday afternoon in municipal court on two bicyclists who recently pedaled approximately 50 miles from here to Toledo—an admittedly stolen cycle.

The men are Woodrow Pridmore of Michigan and John Leitzenberg of Kentucky, both about 21. The bicycle was stolen from the grounds of a carnival which stood here recently and with which the men were believed associated. It is the property of Robert Briggs and is valued at $2.

The men, returned Saturday from Toledo by Deputy Sheriff W. H. Willis after their arrest by Toledo police, pleaded guilty.

FRANCE DROPS GOLD AND ACTS TO STEM OUTGO

Asks Aid of Britain and U. S.
To Keep Metal from Leaving Country.

CHAMBER BACKS PREMIER

New Taxes Expected To Yield
$66,000,000 Mapped To Overcome Crisis.

By The Associated Press
PARIS, June 29.—The new people's front government, struggling with a financial crisis that caused France temporarily to leave the gold standard, today reported seeking aid of the United States and Great Britain to stem the flight of gold from France.

Parliamentary circles disclosed this was one of the first acts of the week-old government of Premier Camille Chautemps to deal with the financial crisis.

Chautemps, today, won a vote of confidence from the chamber of deputies—393 to 142.

Would Avoid Questions

He won the vote on his demand that chamber questioning of the government be postponed until his urgent demand for sweeping financial powers is disposed of. This demand will be voted on later.

He is asking for the "necessary powers" to re-establish France's fiscal structure on a firm basis and restore the country's confidence in itself by ending speculation abuses, conserving gold reserves, balancing the budget, watching over prices and "reviving national economy."

Members of the chamber of deputies said also that Rene Brunet, undersecretary of state for finance, had informed them the government had advised the United States and Great Britain "of its desire to disengage the franc from the present parity with the dollar and pound."

No Details Worked Out

They added that no details for accomplishing this had been worked out as yet.

(France, Britain and the United States are bound together in a 16-party monetary agreement designed to equalize their currencies.)

The statement on the government's position came after reports were circulated in parliamentary circles that the franc might be forced down to the level that existed during the administration of the late President Raymond Poincaré—twenty-five to the dollar, or 4 cents for each franc, half a cent less than at present.

Socialist deputies, after a session of their parliamentary bloc this morning preliminary to Chautemps' plan for sweeping decree powers, said Rene Brunet, under-secretary of state for finance, had told them the conversations looking toward Britain and United States help already had been started.

Happy New Year.

This week will be important, barring unforeseen events, chiefly because it brings the fiscal year to an end. It is now time for the government and the taxpayers to wish each other a happy new year.

The government is busy casting its tax on taxpayers who refuse to contribute any more to its extravagances than the law compels them to contribute. This campaign of calumny is being waged despite the fact that individual and corporation income taxes reported last March were 50 per cent over their total for the previous year.

Figures don't mean much any more, but it's still a fact the government is spending vastly more than its income, that it isn't trying to retrench and that it doesn't have enough courage to admit—even to itself—that it is experimenting with inflation.

On one occasion during the fiscal year, which ends June 30, the bottom began to drop out of the huge bond structure which holds up the government. Immediately, administrative officials made hasty sounds of reassurance. But as soon as excitement subsided, they began to throw money around more extravagantly than ever. Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt's pet department, the navy, cost a fourth more this year than it did last year, and that's only a sample of what it is going to cost next year.

But merrily is just around the corner, always. It had been promised for the new fiscal year, but no one now expects to attain it until the year after that. It was promised in 1932 when Mr. Roosevelt was campaigning. It was promised in 1933 when he became President. He has been talking about it ever since. Plainly, he is convinced it is a good thing, as long as his administration doesn't have to practice it.

Goettingen Knows.

The University of Goettingen began, last Thursday, the celebration of its 200th anniversary. The occasion left some thing to be desired. There was an atmosphere of discouragement.

Many universities were represented externally, there will be nothing wrong with the ceremonies. Striking tributes will be paid to one of Germany's great institutions of learning.

Still, Goettingen knows some thing is wrong. It had been selected by the lords and masters of the third reich to make a special appeal to the English and American universities for recognition of the Nazi concept of science—that anything which a Nazi decides is right must be right because he says it is.

Most of the English and American universities whose endorsement the Nazis wanted turned down invitations to participants in the ceremonies at Goettingen. They were too proud to pay any more than perfunctory respect to men who have issued this edict: "We do not know of or recognize truth for truth's sake or science for science's sake,"—Nazi minister of education, Dr. Rust. In address to scholars assembled last year to honor University of Heidelberg on its 550th anniversary.

Fighting Heart.

The prizefighting game, it is customary to say, is in bad shape. There are too many second rate fighters and first rate chiselers in it.

New Champion Joe Louis and former Champion Jimmy Braddock, everybody agrees, put on a whale of a fight last Tuesday night. Each did exactly what he does best. Louis used his flite, and Braddock used his heart.

The defender, the experts charge, used more courage than discretion. The odds were against him; he should have covered up, run away, taken advantage of his opponent's heaviness afoot to save himself for 15 rounds, if possible, on the chance of getting a decision.

That's what the experts are saying. Evidently, poor fighters and good chiselers aren't the only things wrong with the fight business. Move over, boys, to make room for the boys who always know a dozen ways to get out of everything, but not in a sportsmanlike way.

Budding Confidence.

Cleveland, notes a commentator, still is intact, its government functioning, democracy holding sway and with no citizen reported suffering from the infection of Nazism who was not already a victim of that political malady.

In other words, the German exchange students who lived in the city six weeks have gone home without overthrowing, undermining, corrupting or otherwise harming the government. Instead of being the

Purge Within The Party

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

FIVE months ago Dr. Stanley High, who had worked hard for Mr. Roosevelt's reelection, published an article in "The Saturday Evening Post" in which he predicted that there would be a purge of the Democratic party. He named Vice President Garner and Senator Robinson as congenital opponents of the new deal whose political heads would, as they say in Europe, soon begin to roll. Dr. High was at once blurted, repudiated by the White House. But it now appears that his critics were not that he had misrepresented the facts but that prematurely he had let the cat out of the bag.

For no sooner had his article appeared than there began that series of actions which so sharply differentiated Mr. Roosevelt's second term from his first term. The difference lies in this: that in the first term the program of the President, whether well conceived or badly, was concerned with recovery, relief and reform, whereas in the second term the program is directed to the establishment of an overwhelming and centralized governmental power center in a new bureaucracy allied with organized class interests.

Since the election there has been a revolution within the new deal administration itself, and in the course of this revolution there is a purge of those Democrats who cannot be counted upon.

Much Ado About Nothing.

The purge which Dr. High predicted is not being conducted with the same ruthless brutality which has been employed against the supreme court. The journalists who have the inside track have not yet been unleashed against Morris, Garner, Robinson, Marshall, and Barnes as they were against the Nine Old Men. After all, these Democratic leaders, unlike the judges, represent political organizations which carry votes with them.

So instead of being subjected to frontal attack they are being destroyed by attrition. They are being confronted with one measure after another that compels them to choose between their conscientious convictions and their partisan loyalty. They have had to support or at least acquiesce in the scheme to pack the court, in the scheme to seize control of the independent and the regular Democratic leaders are in a position where their remaining influence will either be exploited until it is used up, or they must take a stand now and re-establish themselves as independent men. For them the time of decision has arrived. They will either be broken or saved in the near future. They must decide whether they will serve the new deal, knowing that they are distrusted by it and will only be used while they are useful, or they must do what as many of their fellow Democrats have done, what Wheeler and Glass, what Burke and Byrd, what O'Mahoney and King have done: they must stand now and fight now for the things they believe in.

Let them not imagine that if they yield on the judiciary and on the capture of the commissions and on the capture of the checks and balances of the American constitutional system. These measures are the substance of a radical transformation of the government and of the party system, and once they are put into effect, the power of the new dealers will be almost impossible to liquidate by ordinary democratic procedure. With the courts and the commissions and the congress and all large industry and great masses of subsidized voters all under one central control, there will exist a power which no normal political opposition can hope to check.

Now, therefore, is the time for resistance. The issue can still be fought out in debate and by appeal to the people. But when this proposed concentration of power has been consummated, it will almost certainly be too late to do anything about it through the normal processes of popular government.

Largest Photograph

BY FRED O. BAILEY

United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 29—Uncle Sam is having his picture taken—the largest photograph in the world.

When it is finished, some years hence, it will cover an area of more than 3,000,000 square miles. The photograph was begun in 1934 and already is nearly one-third-finished. It is the most gigantic photographic effort in the world's history, this aerial picture of the United States. It likewise will be the most expensive photograph in all history, costing, when completed, about $30,000,000.

The aerial survey is being made by three government services—the agricultural adjustment administration, the soil conservation service and the forest service. The approximately 2,500,000 "shots" will be assembled into a composite map.

AAA covers most territory.

This has been photographed, or has contracted for photographing this summer, a little more than 500,000 square miles. The soil conservation service is nearing completion of aerial mapping of 400,000 square miles, and the forest service has photographs of 30,000 square miles.

The project is so large that it probably will take 50 or more aviation companies, many of them flying several ships, four or five more years to complete the photograph. A large staff of government workers are assembling the pictures and charting maps.

When completed it will picture every town, crossroads, farm home, stream and tree in the United States. Every hill and every valley will be located and their height or depth charted. Even the type of soil will be recorded.

The pictures are taken from a uniform height—14,000 feet—by a special camera. They will "overlap" at least 50 per cent for ease in fitting them together—so that every point will appear in at least two pictures.

Picture cost $0.33 each.

Each picture covers an area of approximately four square miles. The "net" area, allowing for duplication, is about 1½ miles. The government pays an average of $1.25 per square mile for pictures, so that each costs about $6.33.

This, however, is only the initial cost. Field crews, into the photographs, survey the ground, establish locations of points shown and record slopes. They note types of soil. Draftsmen and other laboratory experts complete and assemble the maps in Washington.

The photographs and maps are used for different purposes by each of the three agencies conducting the survey.

The AAA uses them for checking farmer compliance with its crop program. The size of each farm and of each plot of ground on it are accurately computed and noted. Each photograph is a farm on a miniature scale.

More detailed information is required by the soil conservation service. Drainage, slopes and types of soil are recorded for aid in plotting terraces, contour plowing, dams and other soil erosion control work. Laboratory and field work cost far more than the original photograph.

The forest service mapping is the least expensive. It includes national parks and forests, mountain areas inaccessible to ground survey crews, and other public domain. Photographs are used to establish boundary lines, plan forest fire prevention and control and to record types of forests.

Officials said the completed aerial map would supply valuable information for planning flood control work. The only blocked out places in this gigantic picture will be of fort, military reservations and other defense areas which the war department insisted be omitted.

Anything can happen in the United States. Didn't they recently pull in Clyde Beatty, who enters a cage with twenty wild beasts on a charge of cruelty to the animals?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WHAT ARE THE TAXPAYERS? Nothing further is being said about the plan to broadcast debates in the house and senate. Couldn't congress interest a sponsor?—Arkansas Gazette.

Seemingly too sensitive to the challenge of other political doctrines, Americans tend to forget that they, too, have something to offer in the way of government. Their outraged shrieks of unfair competition whenever another idea impinges on their awareness may have led some of their competitors to underestimate Americans' faith in their own political product.

communications, in the alliance with the CIO in the consolidating at the sit-down strike, in the continuation of executive standing by blank check, and finally in the setting up of a Presidential board empowered to regulate at its discretion wages and hours in every important industry.

The choice offered to these men is either to fight now or to confess their complete subversion, and assent to the destruction of their influence and reputation by compromising everything they believe in. If they fight they may be beaten. But if they do no fight, their political destruction is certain. If they stand and go along and do what they are asked to do, they will hate themselves and when they are no longer useful for keeping up appearances they will either be kicked upstairs into oblivion or kicked out into private life. By that time they will be so compromised that the new dealers will have no further use for them and the opposition will not trust them.

More Take Stand

In a word, the regular Democratic leaders are in a position where their remaining influence will either be exploited until it is used up, or they must take a stand now and re-establish themselves as independent men. For them the time of decision has arrived.

For them the time of decision has arrived. They will either be broken or saved in the near future. They must decide whether they will serve the new deal, knowing that they are distrusted by it and will only be used while they are useful, or they must do what as many of their fellow Democrats have done, what Wheeler and Glass, what Burke and Byrd, what O'Mahoney and King have done: they must stand now and fight now for the things they believe in.

Let them not imagine that if they yield on the judiciary and on the capture of the checks and balances of the American constitutional system. These measures are the substance of a radical transformation of the government and of the party system, and once they are put into effect, the power of the new dealers will be almost impossible to liquidate by ordinary democratic procedure. With the courts and the congress and all large industry and great masses of subsidized voters all under one central control, there will exist a power which no normal political opposition can hope to check.

Now, therefore, is the time for resistance. The issue can still be fought out in debate and by appeal to the people. But when this proposed concentration of power has been consummated, it will almost certainly be too late to do anything about it through the normal processes of popular government.

Leisure in Russia

THE average Russian spends from two to seven hours a month at the movies.

One fifth of all the workers play chess, and it is undoubtedly the favorite Soviet game.

These, and other figures, regarding the leisure-time activities of the workers have been released in Moscow recently by the central stateleal department, who based their findings on a cross section survey.

Without disparaging in any sense the many fine unions which exist in this country which have developed responsible leadership and accountability for funds used, the searchlight of public scrutiny might well be turned on just how some of the CIO unions are winning their so-called "victories" which the headlines tell about as "elections" are held.

The other day a headline in a New York newspaper proclaimed: "CIO Union Wins Bus Company Vote. Transport Workers Get Right To Bargain, 1,210 to 356."

Back of that election is an interesting story which is no doubt duplicated in many another election. Before the poll was taken among the bus company employees, this correspondent received letters from people speaking for itself in defense of what happens before a CIO "election".

"My father started to write a letter to you but asked me to do it for him. So here goes: My father was a motorman for several years in New York and when buses came in he went to a school of the company and now drives a bus. He never had any trouble with non-members of the party. He makes any. To tell the truth, he is a saint and right now he is being battered by devils, if you like."

In Coward's biography there is a full page picture and many references to "Jack" Coward submits all his plays and written articles to him first and makes no production plans without his approval. All of which is a prelude to Wilson appearing in another role.

When Coward's play of short skits closed recently, Wilson decided that between Coward productions he would produce a play called "Excursion". He did, after others had turned it down, and it has proved one of the four major successes of rather thin theatrical season.

Paul Gerard Smith, one of the west coast's observing literati, finds two of the most interesting conversationalists he knows are extremely hard of hearing. He refers to Edna Jones, gentle essayist and lovable San Francisco historian, recently roared by the Hollywood studios, in soft voice with gestures arriving just a bit too late, I have been privileged to hear him talk in a gathering of intimate friends, telling the quaintest of stories with the deepest touches.

The other Smith names is the equally lovable Walt Mason, Englishman who has made little progress although for many reasons they should. That is in conducting dance orchestras. London has two women who are outstanding and Vienna has several. The Spitalney orchestra is all female, but conducted by a man.

The shadow of death hangs heavily over what many believe is now New York's most aristocratic block. It is known as Observation Hill and lies serenely on East 93rd street between Park and Madison avenues, filled with massive residences with huge grilles doors and facades grooved in grandeur.

Several have brick walled gardens in French fashion and the occupants are the cream de la cream of the social brew. Folk with yachts, Long Island estates, town houses in London and chateaux in France. Among those in the zone passing away recently were George E. Baker and Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt. I have passed through the block many times but have once to see a pedestrian on the sidewalk. Everything is cold, formal and, to the casual passerby, forbidding.

Wayne B. Wheeler, attorney to the National Anti-Saloon League, was one of the principal speakers at the state Sunday School convention in session here. He said: "Ohio must lead the way to national prohibition."

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "The Dixie Gals," starring Alice Brady at the Columbia George Beale had the leading role in "Marcelline Millions."

The Word of God

IN THE IMPORTANCE OF WORDS: There is nothing so without a man, that entering his home can define him; but the talk which come out of him, those which they define the man—Marcelline Millions.

Among Will H. Hays' pictures of celebrities autographed personally to him are those of ex-King Alfonso and Premier Mussolini. No handwriting I have ever seen so markedly portray the popular opinions of the two men. Alfonso is a weak, vacillating and roundly cramped schoolboy scrawl that might have been written by a 15-year-old at boarding school. But Al Duce's is vim, dash and sweep with compelling bold strokes as though to say "I am master of my fate." He signs himself merely Mussolini. Recently I was privileged to see a thank-you note from the Duke of Windsor to an American friend. Somehow it had a royal touch, big, commanding. He started it off "Dear Old Fellow" and ended "I hope you are as happy as I—Windsor." Is Al Duce one of the finest American penmen? Is former Mayor Jimmy Walker, Expert says where Hall could be reached. At Pittsburgh, Philip Murray, chairman of the SWOC, declined any comment. He said he did not know Hall.

CIO MAN HUNTED IN STRIKE BOMBING

Officials said the explosives were stored in union headquarters in Warren for several days, though, they said, to wreck the entire block.

Blasts They Were Slipped In
As to that, Wines asserted it would have been an easy matter for any one to slip into the building unnoticed and conceal any bulky object, since both front and back doors were left open day and night.

Police Chief B. J. Gillen made it plain that no members of the strike committee were suspected of having any knowledge of bombing plans.

Companied in the Youngstown area, returning to normal schedules under police and national guard protection, said all but one small plant was in operation the day as they prepared to resume three shift production.

Sheet & Tube Co. reopened its rod and wire plants this morning. Officials announced about 300 of the 1,400 normally employed had reported for work.

Republic Steel reopened its beam plant and said that 700 out of a normal force of 1,300 men had returned.

The only mill not yet operating is the small Hubbard unit of Sheet & Tube where 120 men are normally employed.

Sheet & Tube operations officials claimed 8,700 men reported for work today on the day shift and approximately 3,000 on last night's shift. The company employees a total of 14,500 men in Youngstown.

May Close Plants

The two explosions at Johnstown, rippling away pipelines supplying water to the big Franklin mill and the Gauley plant—major units of the Cambria works—may mean the closing of the entire works for two weeks, General Manager C. R. Elliott said.

He immediately ordered five blast furnaces banked, and closed 15 open hearths and the Franklin rolling mill. Water was temporarily turned into the company lines from the Johnstown system.

Two hundred state police closed every road leading to the works.

Hall, Braund Plotter

Here a warrant was issued charging Hall, director of the CIO strike on the Warren-Sluice front, with having plotted the dynamiting of bridges, the blasting of railroad tracks, the bombing of steel mills and the light and power company, and the destruction by high explosives of the homes of non-strikers.

The Warren police, with three alleged terrorists already in jail, announced the hunt for Hall over as the back-to-work movement, which Hall and the CIO are bitterly opposing, picked up momentum not only in the Mahoning valley but in Pennsylvania and in the "Columbus" industrial area of Indiana and Illinois.

Strike attention, which had turned yesterday to the efforts of Indiana's Governor Townsend to find a peace panacea for the East Chicago, Ind., steel strike front—where back-to-work agitation has instilled fear of trouble—swung sharply back to Ohio as details of the alleged "terror plot" became known.

Blasts Shado Oratory

Even the sharp criticism that two congressmen—one Democrat and one Republican—voiced on the floor of the house yesterday against the President's and Secretary of Labor Perkins' steel strike policy was overshadowed for in all the oratorical blasting that has marked the 31 days of strike this is the first time that a strike leader has been named on serious charges.

The statement by Scott, a white-haired man of 40, said that Hall, who is head of the local strike executive committee, had issued orders:

1. To blow up the homes of non-striking workers.

2. To set off bombs on the property of the Republic Steel Corp., the Light & Power Co., the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania railroads, a bridge at the Trumbull Cliffs furnaces (Republic owned), and

3. To set fire to hundreds of gallons of highly volatile benzol stored near Republic's plant.

Story Corroborated

The city solicitor, George Buchwalter, said that the statements by the other two prisoners, Bundas and Borawiec, corroborated what Scott said.

Officers reported they found three quarts of nitroglycerine, all that remained, they said, out of two and one-half gallons which Borawiec and Bundas got in Oil City, Pa., June 18.

One quart was found "near the Pennsylvania railroad tracks where eight damage from a bomb occurred last Thursday." That bombing, according to police information, was done by two men imported from Cleveland.

The police said, "enough explosive to wreck the entire block" was stored in a milk can on the second floor of CIO headquarters here for five days before the first explosion last Wednesday night. Stored there, too, the confessions said, were a "machine" gun and other weapons.

The milk can full of explosive was taken "gladly" to Borawiec's house where, according to the confessions, the nitroglycerine was put into eight-quart bottles, fused, capped, and taped into time bombs.

The plot to blow up the bridge which leads to the Trumbull Cliffs furnaces was thwarted when a national guard patrol car chased the machine in which the bombers, with several bottles of nitroglycerine ready capped and taped, were riding.

Try To Hurt Bonus Away

In an effort to get rid of the bombs they tried to throw them into the river. The bombs exploded.

Exploded, damaging the bridge slightly and also the automobile. Guardsmen fired upon the terrorists as they roared away, but lost them in the darkness of the night.

The statements say that Hall, a blond, husky Scandinavian about 30 years old, talked the dynamiting plan over with Scott in detail.

Hall put up the money, they said, to get the explosive. The amount was $5. Police believe the nitroglycerine was stolen from a shack near Oil City, but the statements do not say so.

Borawiec and Bundas made the trip to Pennsylvania and, as the city solicitor explained it, returned to Warren and took the explosive—a milk can full—to the basement of Borawiec's home. Later it was moved to the CIO headquarters, and then back to Borawiec's.

"When the men returned from Pennsylvania," said the city solicitor, "they reported at once to CIO headquarters for further orders."

Scores of people came and went at headquarters during the days the explosive—"enough to blow up the entire block"—was stored there. A small meeting room in on the same floor as that where the explosive was stored. There is an improvised eating place on the floor below.

Bombs Given In Two
On Wednesday, June 23, the bombs were parceled out to Borawiec, Bundas and the others, on Scott's orders.

These men were assigned to definite points around the city and the Republic Steel Corp. property where the bombs were to be exploded.

Five cans loaded with men—and bombs—drove from Warren that night and to the vicinity of the blast furnace of Republic's plant. Shortly afterward, C. R. Wheeler, a company official, reported that a bomb had exploded in a pile of dust near the plant, but had caused no damage.

The following night, the statement continued, two men imported from Cleveland, "under [Franklin's] orders" were taken to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks near the open hearth division of the steel mill.

Railroad police were around, and the bombers left. Later the same night they returned and left the bomb which destroyed a portion of the tracks.

Endangers Troopers

It was that same night, a little later, that the bomb exploded on the bridge near the Republic plant, endangering the lives of eight national guardsmen.

"In the automobile," said Scott's statement, "were Bundas, Myers and two others with a basket of bottles of nitro."

The trip was specifically ordered by Hall. The plot was to blow up the bridge over the Mahoning river leading to the open hearth plant of Republic."

Hall is not a native of Warren nor a worker here. He came to Warren, police said, about three months ago and organized the local CIO union. He is married.

The charges against the union men were filed under a state law which provided penalties of from one to 20 years for convictions.

383 MEMBERS ACTIVE IN COUNTY'S 26 4-H CLUBS

Boys and Girls Carrying on 391 Projects, Report to State Headquarters Shows; Activities Listed.

Annual club organizational report of 4-H work in Marion County, 4-H clubs 383 members and 391 projects under way, was announced today by Raymond W. Pifer, assistant county agent in charge of club work. The report was forwarded to the state 4-H club offices at Columbus.

The number of clubs and members represent a decrease from the 411 members and 32 clubs of last year. The decrease is explained by the fact that four clubs are not yet organized and that other clubs consolidated during the year. An effort is being made also to discourage club from listing prospective members on membership roster as they have done in past years, thus accounting for many of the 415 of last year, Mr. Pifer said.

With only actual members listed at the beginning of each year, the state will show a higher percentage of members completing projects in the fall, Mr. Pifer said.

He will come here from Chicago where he is now conducting an evangelistic meeting, which is to close today or Wednesday. Rev. Palmer has been engaged in evangelistic work in Illinois and Wisconsin, leaving Oklahoma in February.

CONTRACT LET FOR MORROW POWER LINE

Columbus Firm Agrees To Build 230 Miles To Serve 750 for $156,000.

MT. GILEAD, June 22—Representatives of the Morrow County Rural Electric Cooperative Inc. announced today that a contract for construction of 230 miles of transmission lines has been signed with the Paul Gilmore Co. of Columbus. The contract provides that construction will be started by July 10.

Of the 230 miles of line, 215 are primary and 15 are secondary. The first lines will be built, starting from the new substation two miles south of Mt. Gilead and the majority of the 750 members of the cooperative are expected to have current available early this fall.

Power for the lines will be secured from the Marion Reserve Power Co., and the cooperative will maintain a service organization which will have no connection with the private company.

The Gilmore bid of $156,000bridge the per mile construction cost to $740, the lowest per mile cost of any cooperative electric company in the state.

Abe Fortas, the commission expert, testified also that Mrs. Willehina duPont Ross of Montchanin, Del., had saved $40,000 in 1936 through the Renko Corp., which derives substantial income from securities and gas leases.

He said Mrs. Ross had transferred to this company, in addition to securities and leases, "a large farm and racing stable."

Others Mentioned

The names of other members of the wealthy duPont family had been brought into the investigation previously. Tomorrow Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., President Roosevelt's son, marries Miss Ethel duPont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont.

In quick succession Fortas had presented more prominent names to the tax investigators. They included Henry L. Doherty, president of Cities Service Co., Carter Lupton of Chattanooga and Mrs. Helen S. Raskob, wife of John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman.

Turning to the Sloans, Fortas asserted that Mrs. Sloan, of Great Neck, L. I., owns the Jackson Corp., Snug Harbor Development Corp. and half of the New Castle Corp. He said Mr. Sloan was a director of the duPont Co., Pullman Co. and owned the Rene Corp., Marquette Corp. and the other half of the New Castle Corp.

The latter three were described by Fortas as personal holding companies.

Fortas testified that the five personal holding companies owned by the Sloans resulted in what he termed "tax avoidance" by them of about $40,000 in 1934, $25,000 in 1935, and $125,000 in 1936.

Cite Loss of Revenue

The witness, in naming Mrs. Raskob, said "owners of personal holding companies, even though subject to taxation, have 'deprived the government of revenues'—have avoided their full share of tax" by turning over to their corporations homes, estates, airplanes and automobiles.

Fortas said Mrs. Raskob, directly, or through Plotter Farm, owns Archmere Inc., and the Pioneer Point Realty Co. In addition she also has a minority interest in the Chedraian Securities Corp., described by Fortas as "apparently a large company" in which General Motors Corp. executives are interested.

Doherty, Fortas asserted, had saved about $160,000 in 1934 by the use of four personal holding companies.

Race To Old Man Warren's.

"There's something I want to ask you," said Josh Hastings. "Who was the fellow you were in town with, today?"

"He's a new puncher I've just taken on." Kay dexterously evaded his grasp, and ran lightly down the steps.

"What's his name?"

Kay pretended not to hear as she swung into the saddle and picked up the reins. "I'll tell you about him some other time," she called, with an attempt at a gaily nonchalant tone. Controlling her the mysterious horseman. She had no idea who he was, but that slight figure couldn't be Job Hastings. It would be better, she decided, to wait and see what he wanted, as he was obviously trying to catch up with her. His horse being faster than Flicker, he was bound to accomplish his purpose sooner or later, so it would be more dignified to slow down than to appear to be frightened into flight.

Gradually pulling Flicker in, she rode ahead more at ease, and as the pounding hoofs beat behind her drew near, she reined in, and turned to face the stranger.

No Fear For Herself.

Kay had a vague feeling of having seen the man who was coming on at a hard gallop, but for the moment she couldn't place him. Then, as he drew nearer, she recognized him as one of the Flying Six punchers.

She couldn't remember his name, but she clearly recalled having seen him at the last dance on the range. Something about him had distinctly repelled her. She had disliked his narrow face, with its close-set gray eyes, broken nose and the unpleasant twist to his mouth. He had tried to dance with her, but who had deftly evaded him. As Kay thoughtfully looked back to this former encounter, she felt her heart beating fast, with a sudden fear.

Not fear for herself, because he would be only too glad to see her. But once let him get the idea that two people were after his property, and his pride would skyrocket out of sight.

As Kay pulled in for a few minutes to let Flicker rest his wind, she laughed at herself for her mad haste.

"I suppose I am as crazy as that loosed coyote. Josh Hastings was talking about," she observed. "Probably it hasn't occurred to him at all, to buy up this land, and I'm having all this panic for nothing. Just the same it's lucky Old Man Warren hasn't any telephone, or he might beat me to it, even now."

Spurred on by the sudden fear that Hastings might send a message to the store for Warren to go over there and call him up, Kay urged Flicker on again. Gradually through the clatter of Flicker's hoof beats, she heard the instant pounding of more hoofs behind her.

Sudden panic seized her, and she gave Flicker a touch of her spur, not daring to glance back, in her certainty that she would see Josh Hastings following post-haste on her trail.

Impetuously she could feel the pursuing horse catching up, and at last unable to bear the suspense and uncertainty any longer, she glanced around.

She grasped out her relief, and reined in slightly at the sight of Old Man Warren's house.

out that way. The average husband is so busy trying to "improve" his wife, and the average wife is so busy telling her husband something "for his own good," that married life is just a bowl of pomegranates, and they spend their days looking for flaws instead of flowers.

The trouble is that most husbands and wives are so terribly afraid that they may make each other concealed, that even when they do pass each other's compliment, it comes so wrapped up in a lot of "wholesome advice" that the recipient can't tell whether it is meant for a bouquet or for a brickbat.

Those medieval monarchs had the right idea. They paid courtiers and favorites to flatter them and laugh at their jokes and tourists their vanity and self-complacency. No wonder they thought that they were divinely sent.

Everybody needs somebody to keep up his (or her) courage and self-confidence to help him blurt himself. Somebody to keep his inferiority complex down to zero and his self-esteem up to par. Only a faithful and untiring cheer-leader can do it—and cheer-leading, like cheer, should begin at home.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29—An appeal to the Ohio supreme court won an automatic stay of execution today for William M. Gardner, 38, under sentence to die July 12 for the slaying of Arch B. Coyer, hotel clerk, who was fatally shot Jan. 25, 1935.

SEIK TO CAP GUSHIER
By T. J. Tiffin, O., June 29—Attempts to control a well gushing 500 barrels of oil daily were renewed today by drillers on the Rufus Martin farm, north of here. The well was drilled in yesterday.

There are many ways in which love may be lost. Sometimes it dies of slow starvation, and sometimes of acute indigestion. Sometimes it is smothered to death, sometimes it is bored to death, and sometimes it is choked to death. But most times it is just frozen to death.

Your husband or wife is supposed to be your most ardent admirer, and therefore your natural work.

IN Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press.)

MYSTERIES

The Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society has in its museum on the Ohio State university campus an interesting meteorite. It fell in 1868 and the fall was witnessed by William Johnson, owner of a farm near Wooster.

He stated that he heard a startling sound overhead, rushed out on his porch and saw a highly luminous object above him with a trail of fire behind it. Almost immediately it exploded, pieces being scattered in all directions.

The principal part of it struck the earth about a quarter of a mile from the Johnson's farm and buried itself about four feet in the earth. A fence by the side of which this nucleus of the meteorite fell was scorched and charred by the intense heat, although it had been only momentarily exposed.

Summerizing The Home, Change Without Travel

Dear Friends in Marion:
One small proportion of us are fortunate enough to be able to get out of our summer troubles for two or three months in the country or seashore.

For many, while vacation periods may be limited to a fortnight or less, there are definite advantages as well as the planning of short trips and the saving of money.

One of the first steps is the replacement of heavy draperies and rugs with light items to hold warmth, as well as dust from open windows.

After shopping valiantly for weeks in search of a mirror, the owner finally located a lovely oval picture frame in maple and had a mirror placed in this frame, which harmonized perfectly with the style and shade of the chest.

ingenious applications of glass do help to lift any room above the commonplace. Besides the obvious uses of glass for windows and mirrors, its use in plain or intricated accessories in the bedroom will introduce a cheerful note. Even a mirror panel for a light switch adds sparkle and brilliancy.

Dependable rug cleaners are making a specialty of cleaning and storing floor coverings during hot weather, which gives an opportunity to get the rugs repaired, renovated and out of the way. You may specify the approximate return date when the rugs are sent away. Usually repair charges are charges at this time.

Fiber rugs, once restricted to cottage use, are developing in activity and in usefulness. Now they are matched in many sizes and color schemes and give a light, cheery note to any room.

Moth Preventives

If you are storing heavy rugs at home, clean them thoroughly, wipe them free from dust with a weak solution of ammonia and water, and roll in thicknesses of newspaper or tan paper. The newspaper ink is an excellent moth preventer and keeps out dust as well.

Venetian blinds are solving many a drapery problem in summer and the rest of the year. Pale green Venetian blinds at the windows will contribute a cool effect, and might be harmonized with slipcovers of light green, or a green and beige striped material.

If you have a fireplace, use a shoulder or pointed screen around it in summer, as the background for a low table holding books and flowers. Another practical hot weather idea is to match slipcovers of window drapes in a sliding cover to shield open book shelves. This not only carries out the color harmony, but protects the books from summer dust.

While flower containers offer still another way of beautifying out that cool look. Gather up small articles which require constant dusting and store them firmly away in a suitable box. Then will them freely available at collection time next fall.

Linen slipcovers are attractive for summer. They seem to shed dust and they will combine nicely with colors of drapery, unless you prefer to do the entire room in linen. Creations, of course, is even high in popularity for warm weather drapes and now we have many designs in printed cottons and rayon materials.

Change Lamp Shades

Do away with heavy silk lampshades in summer. If possible, use parchment shades that may be wiped free from dust. Use light shades if you would continue that cool effect into evening.

Ready-made slip covers for day export chairs and pillows are now available in average sizes and may be matched to drapes at an amazingly low figure. For the bedroom there are gay printed and printed sets of matching drapes, bedspreads, dresser sets, chair and pillow covers awaiting the busy homemaker, who lacks time for sewing. It does pay to take a day for browsing around the shop.

When there's redecorating to be done, individual tastes can find ample self-expression in the bedroom.

The rest of the house may conform to styles and general family preferences or traditions, but the bedroom is yours, more than any other room in the house.

Replacing Furniture

Instead of replacing second-hand furniture, such as that scratched table and the worn rocker to the bedroom, determine the general effect wanted and then add one piece of really good furniture at a time. Or, if you are impatient, invest in some of the attractive unpainted furniture which is so inexpensive and finish it yourself. In a modern American home setting, utilizing maple, I recently saw an antique chest of drawers which served as the bedroom dresser.

TO COMPLETE PLANS FOR JULY 4 AIR SHOW

V. F. W. Will Make Arrangements for Program at City Airport.

Plans for the thrill show and air circus for the Fourth of July celebration at the municipal airport will be completed tomorrow night at a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsoring the event. The show is being managed by William Kuhn of Upper Sandusky.

One of the 11 events scheduled features a Bucyrus youth, Chuck Fridge, who will drive a standard automobile at 45 miles an hour head on into a flaming gasoline-soaked board wall. Although this is one of the most thrilling events on the program the air events by Col. Tommy Metcalf of Toledo in a special Waco plane, will give the spectators many moments of anxiety, Mr. Kuhn said.

An invention of the Upper Sandusky man furnishes the climax to the two and a half hour show. It is a mechanical parachute jumper in the form of a man taken several thousand feet into the air then thrown out. The parachute is timed to open only a few hundred feet from the ground.

Other events include the bombing of a miniature fortress with dynamite on the landing field, burning of a girl and various airplane events.

The show begins at 2 p.m. with an aerial parade.

You'll have more fun when the SKIN is clear from WITHIN

No man or woman wants to have a finger pointed at them or receive sympathy because of an unhealthy skin appearance.

Some skin troubles are tough to correct, but we do know this—skin troubles like the body itself must be fed from within.

To make the food we eat available for strength and energy, there must be an abundance of red blood cells.

SSS Tonic builds these precious red cells. It is simple, inexpensive, tested for generations and also proven by scientific research.

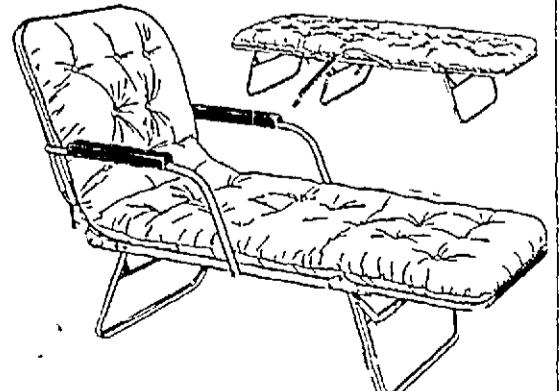

You, too, will want to take SSS Tonic to regain and to maintain your red blood cells...to restore lost weight...to regain energy...to strengthen nerves...and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the SSS Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel...and have your friends compliment you on the way you look. Available at any drug store.
